Get up-to-minute information on what is happening in Iran as women fight to gain freedom over their minds, their bodies, their education and futures. Come and gain a new perspective on the history and events that led to the uprising. Young women are providing a model for a dynamic, leaderless movement that has the potential to grow beyond borders and provide inspiration and synergy among the oppressed and disenfranchised everywhere. If change is going to come, the seeds will be sown by powerful, determined, and smart young women.

Elahe Gol Pari is a native of Iran and a US citizen living in Schenectady. She recently returned from a six month visit with family and friends and was in Iran as the women's revolt was born. She will share her first-hand experiences with us. Coming back to the States, Elahe didn't leave the movement behind. Using her skills and experience as a documentarian, performer and video artist, Elahe continues to facilitate communication among groups in her home country. It is easier from here because of the barriers to social media in Iran. She seeks to expand understanding with allies here and abroad.

Hooray! The Women's Alliance lunches are finally resuming!
Come connect and reconnect with friends old and new.

All genders welcome!
